Carl Jung engaged in a process of deep change that restructured his consciousness. This change was informed by moving away from strictly scientific and rational constructs toward a focus on non-rational experiences and non-ordinary perception.

As Jung developed his theory from these experiences, the analytic focus began to shift to the field that is created between two people and ever-widening spheres of connecting energies. Within this new context some of the basic assumptions of treatment and intervention, which are based on separateness, became less relevant. It is his process of engagement, rather than the content of his theory, that is the focus of this talk.

Many people are experiencing dramatic changes in their lives as our world passes through a collective shift in consciousness. This workshop is designed to explore how to respond to the changes that are occurring as we move away from old rational scientific rules based on linear time and three-dimensional space into new dimensions of consciousness. How we relate to these changes will make a difference in the form the new consciousness takes.

How are you experiencing these changes? Are you experiencing shifts in your awareness, relationships, desires, intentions, career, or health? In this workshop we’ll explore the use of information gained from non-rational sources and transpersonal realms to help give us guidance during these challenging times.

We encourage you to make a bold attempt to engage in the process of change as consciously and conscientiously as Jung did. We feel a responsibility to encourage each other to make a bold attempt to engage in this movement with an awake mind and with loving kindness.

Barbara Friedman, Ph.D. is a Jungian analyst and a licensed psychologist. She is also a certified addictions counselor and a certified Yoga Instructor. She has devoted many years to the study of spiritual wisdom traditions. Barbara is a published author of many articles and a book, Partners in Healing: Redistributing the Power in the Counselor Client Relationship. She is a founding member of the C.G. Jung Educational Center of Cleveland, and has a private practice in Chicago, Illinois.

Doris W. Klinkhamer, MA LCSW, graduated from the University of Chicago School of Social Service Administration, has completed an advanced two-year clinical training program in Jungian Psychotherapy at the C.G. Jung Institute of Chicago and has served as an Adjunct Professor at the University of Illinois, Chicago, where she has taught graduate courses related to mental health in adults. She has served as a staff therapist at Lorene Replogle Counseling Center, as the Executive Director of Senior Bridge and as a Senior Manager at Weiss Memorial Hospital in the area of physical rehabilitation medicine. Currently she is in private practice in Chicago where she integrates her experience and training in psychotherapy with teachings from wisdom traditions. She also serves on the Professional Affiliates Steering Committee and Program Committee of the C.G. Jung Institute of Chicago.